Dear Bob:

Subject: Security of Station Premises

This will acknowledge your letter of 28 April 1955, subject above, and also your letter of 14 April concerning station guards. Should the situation at any time indicate need for future additions to the guard force, you may, upon local police and Army advice, increase the guard force beyond its present strength of five.

Based on your report of the inspection of the station by the Acting Garrison Commander, we seem to be in a pretty good position as long as the situation remains relatively quiet. I think a direct alarm to a police station would be an excellent thing, and if feasible, installation of metal screening on the south and east sides of the main building would also improve security.

Sincerely,

RGS:fes
